- Dr. Douglass announced that Jared Smith, Curator of History would be interviewed on Horizon. It was to air at 5:30 and 10:00 pm on the evening of the board meeting (September 5). He would be speaking about the booklet he recently authored called The African American Experience in Tempe.
- A panel discussion composed of African American Tempe residents was set for that evening at 7:00 pm. This would be the public debut of the booklet.

 Bob McKinley fell and injured his head. He is currently at the Scottsdale Osborn Hospital.

Agenda Item 3: National Accreditation

- Dr. Douglass gave an update on the two remaining documents that are required by the American Alliance for Museums (AAM) for accredited institutions.
 - Disaster Preparedness and Emergency Response Plan: the committee met throughout the summer.
 - They continued gathering information for the plan and filling in the online template. Dr. Douglass estimated that the plan is 75 to 80% complete.
 - The committee will meet again on September 26 at 2:00 pm.
 - Strategic Plan: Dr. Douglass stated that Aaron Peterson from Tempe Learning Center will be the moderator.
 - Dr. Douglass explained that board members will meet jointly with the museum staff. She expressed her desire to begin putting the plan together this fall.
 - Dr. Douglass enquired as to when would be a good time to meet. She suggested that one option would be to tag planning meetings onto monthly board meetings.
 - Several options were discussed by the board members.
 - Dr. Douglass stated that she would consult with Aaron Peterson to find out how many sessions he thought would be necessary to devise a strategic plan.

Agenda Item 4: African History Booklet

- Dr. Douglass explained that the booklet entitled The African American Experience in Tempe was authored by Jared Smith who conducted a lot of original research with the help of interns and uncovered many details of the early African American community in Tempe that were previously unknown. She stated that the booklet is a great contribution to the history of Tempe.
- The booklet project was spearheaded by the African American Advisory Committee. Dr. Betty Greathouse, a member of the committee, wrote the proposal that garnered the funding from the Arizona Humanities Council that made the publication of the booklet possible.
- Dr. Douglass distributed copies of the booklet to the board members. She stated that the booklet will be distributed for free at the museum, Tempe high schools, the Tempe Library and other institutions.
- Board Chair Shirley McKean stated that the Arizona Humanities Council funds projects throughout the state of Arizona. The Council funnels money from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH), whose budget faces a 49% cut proposed by the United States House of Representatives. She urged board members to contact their members of Congress and ask for their support of the NEH.

Agenda Item 5A: Public Programs Representative

• Dr. Douglass stated that the Disney film showings on four Saturdays in August went very well with over 100 viewers attending each showing.

- Dr. Douglass explained that the theme for this year's Wild Wednesdays was "Stuff Museums Collect" and was centered around the different types of artifact that museums collect from archaeology, to insects, to dinosaurs and meteorites. The museum partnered with departments at Arizona State University that hold collections.
- Shirley McKean, Public Programs Committee representative and Museum Board Chair stated that the museum will be showcasing Tempe groups doing original material.
- On September 21 at 7:00 pm Carol Pacey and the Honey Shakers will perform a mix of folk, alternative country and rock and roll. There will be a question and answer session after the performance.
- The Tetra String Quartet will do a Halloween show on October 11 at 7:00 pm.
- The Third Thursday theme for this year is sports. Shirley McKean outlined some of the proposed talks and speakers.
